Apply for benefits online at myleavebenefits.nj.gov

It’s your responsibility to ensure that all of this information – including the medical provider portion – is submitted to the Department’s Division of Temporary Disability Insurance.

If you’re planning ahead, you can start the application up to 60 days in advance and save it as a draft. Once your leave begins, you must return to your draft to certify and submit your application. If applying after your leave begins, you have 30 days from your first day of leave to file your application.

It can take two to six weeks to approve a claim and pay benefits, once we have a complete application.

Receive up to 85% of your average wages, up to $993/week

Your medical provider certifies how long you need to recover from your medical condition, up to a maximum of 26 weeks. After you start receiving Temporary Disability benefits, we may ask you to provide us with proof of your continuing disability to keep receiving benefits.

Temporary Disability Insurance for COVID-19

If your healthcare provider certifies that you are unable to work because you are at high risk for COVID-19 due to an underlying health condition, you may be eligible for Temporary Disability benefits.

Temporary Disability Insurance for pregnancy/childbirth recovery

Temporary Disability provides cash benefits for pregnant parents when they need to stop working before giving birth and while recovering afterward. Parents can transition directly from Temporary Disability to bonding benefits, also known as Family Leave Insurance. Learn more at myleavebenefits.nj.gov/maternity.

Covered employers and employees

Employers must participate in the State Temporary Disability Insurance plan and deduct your payroll taxes for it, or provide a private plan. The federal government is exempt and it is optional for local governments (for example counties, municipalities and school districts). Generally, employees that work a significant amount of time outside of NJ are not covered, but are encouraged to apply to find out if they are eligible.

If you are covered under a private plan, your employer’s insurance carrier is responsible for processing and paying benefits on your disability claim. Reach out to your employer to learn more about your coverage and get an application.

Job protection

Temporary Disability Insurance is a wage replacement program and does not provide job protection. However, your job may be protected under the Federal Family & Medical Leave Act (FMLA), which is separate and which is enforced by the U.S. Department of Labor. Generally, employers with at least 50 employees are covered under FMLA and must provide up to 12 weeks of job-protected, unpaid medical leave. You may need to provide notice to your employer if you’re taking leave under this law.

In addition, if an employer retaliates against you for taking or seeking to take Temporary Disability benefits, you have the right to take private legal action.
